

TIMOTHY WALTON

AUTHOR

Tim Walton is the son of a U.S. Navy aviator and was born in the naval hospital at Pearl Harbor. He did his undergraduate work at the College of William and Mary. After graduating, he went into the Navy and served at bases and on ships in the Atlantic and Mediterranean, visiting more than 15 countries. Tim did his graduate work at the University of Virginia, earning a Ph.D. in modern European history, with a specialty in diplomatic history. While working on his dissertation, he received a Fulbright Grant to study in Paris, where Tim did research in the archives of the French Foreign Ministry. Dr. Walton then spent 24 years as an analyst at the Central Intelligence Agency. Since 2011 Tim has been on the faculty of the Intelligence Analysis Program at James Madison University, in Harrisonburg, Virginia. In addition to The Spanish treasure fleets, Mr. Walton is also the editor of The role of intelligence in ending the war in Bosnia in 1995 (2014), and Challenges in intelligence analysis: Lessons from 1300 BCE to the present (2010).
